INTRODUCTION

This volume is inscribed to the remembrance of the ancestors herein contained.

PREFACE TO VOLUME II.

This volume contains the third part of the Dashiell family records, being the record of Thomas Dashiell and his descendants. Thomas Dashiell was the second son of James Dashiell, the elder, and was the first of the name born in Maryland.

The compiler will be grateful to any of the readers of this volume who will kindly call his attention to any errors of omission or of commission that they may find therein, and for the sake of accuracy, Part Seven of the records will contain the additions and corrections found necessary.

The previous volume contained an outline of the Dashiell ancestry previous to the Maryland immigration. Part One of this volume contained the record of James Dashiell, the elder, the American immigrant, and Part Two contained the record of James Dashiell, Junior, and his descendants. James Dashiell, Junior, was born in Virginia and emigrated to Maryland with his parents in 1663.

The thanks of the writer is herewith conveyed to the family members, friends and genealogists for their expressed praise of the work contained in the preceding volume.

"Ah Death, could aught thy Mandate fierce revoke—
Virtue had lived nor felt this hasty Stroke!
Such Virtue Slain how grevious is the Cross!
Such Virtue Slain who'll estimate the Loss!
When most engaged in her domestic Cares,
The Widow's groans She Sooth'd the Orphans Tears:
Whilst, from the Treasure of her generous Heart,
Her Outstrtch'd hand would liberal Aid impart!
To fortune's Changes prudently resigned;
By Wisdom's Precepts rul'd her docile mind,
Life's Checkered Paths with Wary Steps she trod,
Her Faith still pointing to her Parent God!
And is She gone! Let those who yet Survive,
Transcribe her Manners & hence learn to live,
Fair Virtue prize the snares of Vice defy
And like my Henrietta, learn to die,
And is She lost! She's only gone before!
The Saint now triumphs on the happy Shore
Where all Serene no Clouds her peace Annoy
Where Virtue reaps her own eternal Joy!"

TRADITIONAL RECOLLECTIONS.

The Rev. George Dashiell, at the instance of his daughter Mrs. Jane Dashiell Bayard, wrote, a few years before his death, in the family Bible, the following recollections of his family history, and are now published as interesting information, rather than as exact facts.

"My Grandfather was a French Huguenot. After the revocation of the Edict of Nantes by Louis XIV, he fled to England to escape the bloody persecution that was then raging against the Huguenots, to compel them to submit to the fooleries and idolatries of Popery. What the family standing was in France, I know not. There has been a tradition in the family, that they were connected with the family of Henry IV. But whether this tradition is founded on fact, or not, is of no consequence. The family must have been of high respectability or he could not have married into the Fairfax family.

"My Grand-father emigrated to America, and settled on the Eastern shore of Maryland on the North side of Wicomico Creek. He purchased all the land from the mouth to the head of the creek, on which he built a large brick house. My grandfather was probably the eldest son, as he inherited the family plate, marked with the name of Fairfax, which he brought with him from England. The plate and the home place, on which stood the family mansion, he left to my father, who was the youngest son, and but two years old when my grandfather died. In that family mansion I was born.

"George Dashiell."

He died the fourth of March 1852, in New York City, at the house of his son-in-law, William Bayard. The following is part of his obituary, published in the Christian Observer, Philadelphia, April seventeenth, 1852.

"The Rev. George Dashiell was born in Somerset county, Maryland, and received a classical education, and was graduated at Washington College, Chestertown, of the same state. Soon after he left college he was converted to God, and in his ninteenth year commenced preaching. At the close of the Revolution, the church was desolate religion everywhere at a low ebb, ministers very few, and not evengelical—he saw the ruin, and his ardor hurried him to the work at once. In his twenty first year, he was ordained at Philadelphia by Bishop White, for ever he entertained a profound and just esteem. On the eastern shore of Maryland, he passed the earlier days of his ministry—a most active and effective ministry—revivals constantly attending his preaching, until the whole peninsula seemed to glow with new life and power. At the commencement of the present century, he removed to Baltimore. He had visited that city upon invitation, and a wealthy merchant was so charmed with his eloquence and evengelical preaching, that he determined if possible, to secure his services. According, pretty much at his own expense, he erected a spacious building, at that time the largest church in the city; and Mr. Dashiell, then a young man, in feeble health, a stranger, was invited by a few gentlemen to begin his ministry in Baltimore. Until the completion of the new building, by the christian courtesy of the German church, under the care of the venerable and apostolic Otterbein, Mr. Dashiell preached in their house on the morning on every Lord's day to crowds of people. God was with him. Sinners were converted, saints rejoiced, and by the time the edifice, prepared for him, was finished, a congregation filled to overflowing. "So mightily grew the word of God and prevailed." For a long time he maintained a most prosperous course in the new church. Years passed, and with every year constant accessions of spiritual devoted christians. There seemed to be a perpetual revival. The prayer-meetings were always full, generally crowded. He had the happiest manner in engaging the co-operation of the church. The members were all active. They were elivened by fervent exercises, and contrubuted to the growth of the church. Scarcely a male led in prayer and gave a word of exhortation, as occasion offered. Of all the churches I have known, not one, to my apprehension, has approximated so near to the primitive model as this. And although it has long been sundered and scattered, as were the deciples at Jerusalem, upon the persecution, that arose about Stephen, I doubt not that it's name is not only remembered, but its influence still felt. In the course of his long ministry at that place, hundreds professed the name of our Lord Jesus.

"Under his auspices, several young men entered the ministry—among them, Bishop Stone, late diocesan of Maryland. His house was the house of these young men, as long as they chose; and his purse was open as their wants and necessities required.

"As a pastor, in delligence, kindness and fidelity he was scarcely surpassed. None escaped his attention; but among the poor and destitute, the sick and the dying—not only of his own charge, but of the many, who in a large city may truly say—"no man careth for my soul," his minstrations were constant untiring.

"As a preacher, he was emenently practical.—He was not given to speculation. He had no taste for theories. He believed the word with the simplicity and confidence of a child. His constant theme was "Jesus Christ and him crucified." In the prayer-meeting, and in the sick-room, did his set Him forth most fervently and powerfully. In this lay whatever of strength he had. Though not a Calvinist in theory—he was, as the late Mr. Duncan of Baltimore, once said to him, the strongest Calvinist preacher he knew.

"He was habitually devontional. He rose early in the morning always, when in health, with or before the sun; and his morning hymn was a regular and punctual as the song birds. Until breakfast the time was devoted to prayer and the reading of the Bible. Though of fine literary taste, and fond of poetry, philosophy, and eloquence of English literature; of late years such works as "Romaine's Life of Faith," "Walk of Faith," etc., were his chief companions, the Bible ever constant and supreme. His devotional spirit was the secret of his success. It kept his mind ready; and his sentiments always came fresh, warm and glowing.

"His was a most catholic spirit. He loved all men that loved Christ. Orthodox in his own creed, he could easly allow for diversities in things indifferent. Ever treated by most of the orthodox churches as a brother, he regarded them with sincere affection as brethren. He preached for them, when invited, communed with them, and laboured with them, to build them up in their most holy faith.

"He never ceased to preach. Though for thirty years he had no charge, he was connected with no particular denomination after his removal to the West, whither the most of his children had preceded him, he never withheld his services where they were acceptable; and up to the last of his life he spoke with a fervor of spirit, and strength of diction, a clearness of utterance, a beauty of elocution, and a grace of manner, that won admiration from polished auditors, and often remineded his old friends of the strength and vivacity of his earlier days."

The following account was written by the late Rev. Dr. Grammer, and taken from his last sermon, June 28—1868, in the old church building of Old St. Peters Protestant Episcopal Church on the corner of Hopkins Place and German Street, Baltimore, Md. "The first vestry, elected March 15—1804, Messrs. Hezekiah Waters, Walter Dorsey, Jeremiah Yelliott, William P. Mathews, William Jessop, Andrew Buchanan, Charles Tinges, Richard Nichols, and Francis Hollingsworth, the same day met and by unanimous vote called to be the first rector the Rev. Mr. George Dashiell, the early years of whose ministry had been spent on the Eastern Shore and whose eloquence and zeal had warmed the whole Peninsula with new life and power. He was a bold and ardent minister of Christ and whereever he went the Word from his lips was like a flame of fire. His fame as a man of rare endowments in the pulpit had preceded him to this city, and many of the wealthy merchants here having heard him and been charmed by his persuasive and touching appeals, made every effort to secure his election as the associate rector of St. Paul's Church. Failing in this, a large number of Mr. Dashiell's friends in St Paul's Church proceeded in due form of law to erect a new church, in which they might enjoy his ministrations; hence St Peter's and all of it's glorious memories."

The following is to be found on page 20 of a pamphlet published in 1860 by the late Rev. Ethan Allen, entitled "Clergy in Maryland of the P. E. Church since the Independence of 1783."

"George Dashiell, a native of Somerset County—brought up in the Church—was ordained in 1791 by Bishop White, and became Rector of Somerset Parish, Somerset—1793 he removed to Delaware—in 1797 he returned to Maryland and became Rector of South Sassfras, Kent—in 1800 of Chester, in the same County, and in 1804 of St. Peter's, Baltimore City. In 1809, he was the Convention Preacher—thirteen times in the Standing Committee, and four times Delegate to the General Convention. He published two occasional Sermons and an Address to Episcopalians—in 1816 he renounced the Church and was deposed—he organized the "Evangelical Episcopal Church"—he died in 1852, age 82.

"The Committee of elections and privileges beg leave to report that they have had under their Consideration the Memorial of L.D. Teackle, of Somerset County, Contesting the election of George A. Dashiell, a delegate returned for that County, and have bestowed upon it the material deliberation, They requested the attendance of the other gentlemen composing the Somerset delegation, for the purpose of deriving from them any knowledge of the Subject Matter of the Memorial, of which they might be possessed, and obtained all other information immediately accessable to them—From those sources they find that, there are several gentlemen of the name of George Dashiell residing in Somerset County, some of them distinguished by a palronymic, others by a middle name or letter, and some by the addition of junior; but that no other George Dashiell than the member returned was a Candidate in that County at the last election of delegates to the General Assembly, It is true that some considerable time before the election took place, it had been talked of in that County that a George Dashiell, but who your committee understood is designated as (J-512) George Dashiell of John, would be a Candidate for the next House of Delegates. He was, however, never announced as such, and upon being asked about three months before the election, by one of the present delegates from that County, whether he was a Candidate he declared that he was not, nor should he be, and all those gentlemen concur in the belief that although the letter A in the middle name might have been omitted on some of the tickets counted for George A. Dashiell, but which does not appear to have been the case, other than by Statement of the Memorialist, yet that he was the only George Dashiell intended to be voted for; one of them particularly observed, that not withstanding he resides within a few hundred yards of the Memorialist, and was in the habit of conversation with him, he never intimated an intention to contest the return, and that the first surmise of that sort which he received was after he arrived in this City.

Your committee hope that it will not be deemed impertinent to remark, that the conduct of the Memorialist in Applying for the Station of Reading Clerk to the House, was totally inconsistent with what they believe would be the course of a gentlemen determined to Contest the Seat of a member as being illegally returned in his stead, or at least of one who was conscious or conceived, that he had a right to a Seat in this House; and this the more especially casts a suspicion upon his own confidence in the justice of his pretention and the fact of his right, as it was not untill he found himself disapointed in the application that he resorted to the course which he has pursued, and although the waiver of a right may not at all times—disprove it's existance, yet he will scarcely be presumed to have waived it, whose principle anxiety would seem to be rather that, "the voice of the people should prevail," than his own individual wishes be gratified: nor has the Memorialist produced to your Committee any evidence whatever to fortify his statements, and had there been such they concieve that without much difficulty, it might have been adduced, upon a view of the case then, with all it's circumstances and in all it's lights and bearings, they have no hesitation in recomending that the sitting member be confirmed in his Seat, all which is most respectfully submitted.

The full Episcopal service was used. Cassius M. Dashiell, Hamden P. Dashiell, William Dashiell, John W. Dashiell and Louis Dashiell, the five sons of the deceased, and Edwin Dashiell, Jr., a nephew of the deceased, served as the active pallbearers. The honorary pallbearers were:

Littleton R. Polk, Col. Eph. G. Polk, William J. Brittingham, P. Fillmore Lankford, Thomas J. Dixon, Judge Henry Page, W. Hooper Gibson, W. H. Gale, Joshua W. Miles, William P. Rider, Washington W. Waller, Dr. Cadmus Dashiell, John Woolford and Charles W. Fontaine. The funeral was very largely attended, a number of prominent people being present from out of the country.

The vestry of Somerset parish attended in a body, and a delegation of Knights of Pythias from Crisfield also attended. Henry Dashiell, an old colored man, in Wicomico county, and an old slave of the deceased, drove many miles to pay last respects to his old master and immediately followed the coffin to the grave. COLOPHON
The Dashiell three volume genealogy was printed in the workshop of Glen Adams, which is located in the quiet country village of Fairfield, southern Spokane County in Washington State and one township removed from the Idaho line. The work was accomplished by dismantling a set of the three original books, published with different year dates, getting the pages down flat so they could be photographed. Photography/darkroom work was by Marilyn McDowell using a 20x24 inch DS (Japanese) computer driven camera. The film was developed with a 25 inch LogE automatic film developing machine. The film was stripped by Marilyn McDowell. The printing plates were made by Pat Nigh. The sheets were printed by Vern Stevens using a 28 inch Heidelberg press, Model KORS. Folding was by Garry Adams using a three stage Baum Dialmatic folding machine. Assembly was by the Ye Galleon Crew. The paper stock is 70 pound Arrow Offset. Hard case binding is by Willem Bosch of Oakesdale, Washington. The books were sewn by Heidi Doneen using a National book sewing machine. This was a fun project. We had no special difficulty with the work.
